RM115m bridge to connect Jalan Klang Lama to Pantai highway

In addition to the overhead bridge, MRCB will also be developing a 7ha project, called Nine Seputeh (picture).

KUALA LUMPUR, Nov 11, 2014:

Malaysian Resources Corp Bhd (MRCB), a property and infrastructure developer, will build a RM115 million overhead bridge to connect Jalan Klang Lama with the New Pantai Expressway.

Construction is expected to take two years.

Its deputy executive president, Datuk Ishak Mohamed, said the bridge would be one of the alternative routes which would shorten travel time to Bangsar, Sunway and Subang from Seputeh.

According to an MRCB study, about 80% of the vehicles of residents of Seputeh and Lembah Pantai and 20% of public vehicles are expected to benefit from the new overhead bridge.

“In addition to that, MRCB will also develop a 7ha project, called Nine Seputeh, with a gross development value of RM2.6 billion.

“The project would comprise 2,000 units of serviced apartments on Parcels A, B and C.

“For Parcel D, there would be an education institution to boost the value of Nine Seputeh,” he said at the groundbreaking ceremony here today.

Its group chief operating officer, Imran Salim, said the group was progressively launching the project in stages, depending on the market demand.

“So far, we have launched two blocks. Overall, the project consists of commercial, small office/home office and a small retail localised mall. So far, 75% of the serviced apartment are already taken up.”

He said the construction division’s order book to date stood at about RM5 billion.

“We are also in the midst of bidding for multiple government and private sector projects.”
